Sustainability Policy

At Simpson Print, the environment matters! We are committed to being a responsible member of the community and a good steward of the environment. Our employees are critical to our success and we promise to keep everyone that works in our facility safe and healthy and provide a workplace that reflects the diversity of the community we operate in.

Our journey to reduce our impact on the natural environment is continuous and we will strive to build on our achievements as we grow our business. We will seek the support of our suppliers, contractors, employees and customers and annually share our objectives, successes and philosophy with them.

We understand waste management and its effect on the environment and are committed to participate in a circular economy by designing for recovery of natural resources. We will explore opportunities to reduce usage of natural materials; we will reuse materials as much as possible and recycle residual materials when local infrastructure permits.

We will continue on the path of reducing the use and emissions of hazardous chemicals by adopting best practices and implementing new technologies when feasible.

We are committed to identify, monitor and comply with applicable health and safety, environmental and employment standards regulations at the federal, provincial and municipal level and will verify our compliance via biannual audits.

As an industry leading printer, we recognize our position within the community and our responsibility to continually work on environmental best practices.

Sincerely,

Carla Johanns
